

Senior Instructional Leadership - 3 Positions Available

Portland Public Schools is transforming its academic agenda and school service delivery model, and we need strong, experienced leaders to help build our future and drive change and excellence.

Portland Public Schools envisions every student, every teacher, every school succeeding. As we commit to a major transformation under new, nationally-recognized leadership, we are actively seeking talented, driven professionals who are energized by big challenges. If you are solution-oriented, a strong communicator and collaborator, and passionate about urban education, then this is the place for you! Read more about PPS, our schools and programs, and beautiful Portland, Oregon, on our website at <https://www.pps.net/domain/265>.

We are currently seeking a Deputy Superintendent of Instruction and School Communities, a Chief Academic Officer, and a Chief of Student Support Services. This is a tremendous opportunity to join a refreshed academic and instructional team in major transformation efforts under a brand-new, talented and dynamic Superintendent. Join us!

The Deputy Superintendent of Instruction and School Communities is a new position reporting to the Superintendent. Serving as the day-to-day instructional leader, this role will lead the development of modern, powerful and effective professional learning communities at every school site using data-based inquiry to improve learning results for students and transform the curriculum in order to close achievement disparities.

Job Number: 16705

The Chief Academic Officer is a new position reporting to the Deputy Superintendent of Instruction and School Communities. The Chief Academic Officer will provide strategic vision, leadership and direction for the instructional framework and pedagogical approach to the district academic programs and staff. This role will also lead the development and delivery of a professional learning framework for all professional educators and administrators.

Job Number: 16563

The Chief of Student Support Services is a new position reporting to the Deputy Superintendent of Instruction and School Communities. This key leader is responsible for developing and implementing student, family, and community supports that will enable all of our students to be fully engaged and successful. The successful leader will support our students by creating a capacity of services to address student, family, and community needs.

Job Number: 16704

Salary:

Salary commensurate with experience.